I don't want to be a stereotype don't want to live by your wrong
or by your right
don't want to be a stereotype no prototype, surely won't apologize or play small just to keep you satisfied.

Imagine living in a box
Stuck underneath a heavy lock
And in the dark you long to be Somebody else

Imagine breathing in a cage
Trapped in a prewritten page
Behind fixed ideas
In your cell you want to yell

Don't look at me that way
I will never ever fit into your frame
I'm not a picture you can shape
I will never ever play into your game

Must a girl need to be pretty
Stay cute and slim
Measured by the size of her hips?

Must a girl need to wear make-up
And have cherry red lips
And paint a smile so it perfectly fits?

Must she always have to have
A cute little outfit
And play a role that never quits?

Don't look at me that way
I will never ever fit into your frame
I'm not a picture you can shape
I will never ever play into your game

Now you see some truly understand
That beauty lies in the way we take a stand
Some will choose to understand
Maybe you could learn a thing or two from them.

Don't look at me that way
I will never ever fit into your frame
I'm not a picture you can shape
I will never ever play into your game
